End of an era?

Mayor Jim Dorman, the only person to ever serve as mayor of Lemon Grove, does not plan to run for re-election

There have been rumors ever since the last election that this would be the last term for Mayor Jim Dorman. And, as our deadline for going to press approached, we called the mayor to ask if he wished to confirm the latest rumors. And, like any good politician, he hedged a little.

Dorman stated that as of Wednesday, March 4, he did not plan to file for re-election, but could change his mind before the March 6 filing deadline. However, he added that he had given 20 years to the city, serving on the Fire Board and School Board prior to incorporation, and that now, maybe, it was time for someone else to lead the way.

If the mayor does not file for re-election, the filing deadline will automatically be extended until March 11 for other candidates to file. As of earlier this week, three candidates had filed for the two city council positions up for election - Dr. Bob Burns, Jack Moore and Matthew Kahn. Others can be expected to enter if the mayor passes the deadline.

Dorman has served as mayor since incorporation, July 1, 1977, and will serve out his term, which would end when the Registrar of Voters certifies the election results - which may take as much as two weeks after the June 2 election.

The mayor cited the effort to achieve incorporation as the most significant event for the city, and is most proud of the result of redevelopment and revitalization in the city, which he says is recognized as one of the best in the county.

Dorman stated that he needs to spend more time in the practice of law, but was quick to add that he plans to be active in the Chamber of Commerce and other community organizations.

Redevelopment moves ahead despite protests from residents

by Lindy Magner

At Monday night's meeting, the Lemon Grove City Council set March 16 for the public hearing on the city's redevelopment project which would put a Home Depot on Broadway, knocking out a mobile home park and several businesses.

Acting as the Redevelopment Agency, council closed the "owner participation" process required by state law, determining that no current property owners or tenants have expressed an interest in participating in the owner/tenant participation plan which gives current businesses the opportunity to develop redevelopment projects themselves.

According to City Manager Jack Shelver, it is "not realistic" that a current tenant could match the agency's Broadway Commercial Project and put in a 120,000 square-foot building. However, in cases where shopping centers are being constructed, the law provides an opportunity for established business to participate in the new shopping center as well as develop such a project themselves, Shelver added.

During the general public comment periods, Scott McDonald, a Lemon Avenue resident representing the Elmwood Homeowners' Association and the Golden State Mobile Homeowners' League (Elmwood Chapter), spoke in opposition to the project.

"Both of the groups I represent oppose the placement of Home Depot," said McDonald. "Redevelopment isn't intended to destroy."

McDonald then suggested council suspend any further actions on their current plans for six months, and instead, work with his groups to develop a plan which would improve the area by expanding current businesses and placing "double-wide" trailers in the mobile home park.

"We believe an alternative plan could be agreed on within three months. You haven't yet entered into a contract with Home Depot and could give this project a careful, second look," he said, explaining that the "blight" near the mobile home park could be alleviated with senior housing and a mixed-use development.

When questioned by Councilman Craig Lake as to what businesses in the redevelopment area have expressed interest in expanding, McDonald didn't have an answer. Lake also asked him which mobile Jerry Ferm, president of the San Diego Historical Society, receives the deed to the land under and around the Mt. Helix Cross from George Bailey, chairman of the Board of Supervisors as Willis Fletcher, who assisted in arranging the transfer, looks on. The action was taken to circumvent the ruling to remove the cross.

County transfers Mt. Helix cross

After 63 years of ownership by the County of San Diego, the historical cross atop Mt. Helix was officially transferred last Thursday to the San Diego Historical Society.

At a gathering atop the 1,322-foot mountain, Board of Supervisors Chairman George F. Bailey handed the grant deed to the 55-ton cross to Historical Society President Jerry Ferm. The legal conveyance also covers a 15-foot circular parcel of land at the base of the 36-foot landmark.

The 10-acre park and nature theatre surrounding the cross site will remain under public ownership and will continue to be operated by the County Department of Parks & Recreation. The parcel was donated to the County in 1929.

Bailey, whose East County district includes the Mt. Helix area, said, "We are transferring ownership of East County's most prominent historical landmark with full assurance that it will be preserved for the benefit of all San Diego County citizens, and that it will be used for historical landmark purposes."

Bailey also announced establishment of an endowment fund which will be used to maintain the cross and the parcel of land at its base. He said the San Diego Community Foundation has agreed to establish a fund whose interest will be utilized for the upkeep of the landmark.

Citizens interested in making donations to the fund were informed that checks should be made payable to the San Diego Community Foundation with the Mt. Helix Cross Fund as the designated recipient. Checks can be mailed to the foundation at 101 West Broadway, Suite 1120, San Diego, CA 92101.

Bailey pointed out that the continued presence of the cross atop Mt. Helix will permit uninterrupted use of the landmark by civil engineers and land surveyors who have relied upon the monument as a crucial element of San Diego's primary survey control network since 1925, and by the U.S. Coast & Geodetic Survey which adopted the cross as an official station in 1935. Additionally, Bailey noted, the cross serves as a landmark for pilots, and is indicated on flight maps for navigational purposes.

County officials said that transfer of the cross from County ownership to the nonprofit Historical Society should satisfy a federal court which rules that a cross on public land violated the no preference clause of the California Constitution. The court had set a removal date of March 3.

Strong-arm robberies skyrocketing

Lemon Grove crime prevention specialist Jack Miller is worried: There has been a dramatic increase in the number of strong-arm robberies in Lemon Grove during the last two months.

Since Jan. 2, he's recorded 26 incidents involving force and intimidation to take bicycles, purses, and other items, mostly from women shoppers and young teenagers.

According to Miller, this is a 44 percent increase in strong-arm robberies when compared to the same period last year. He noted that although burglaries and other crimes are down, strong-arm robberies are definitely on the rise.

"Most of it is teenagers stealing from younger teenagers, and I'm afraid it's gang-related," said Miller.

"Also, there have been purse snatchings in every local shopping center," he said. "One woman had put her purse on top of her car while she loaded her groceries - it was snatched."

Miller advises women to have a more guarded attitude and not put their purses in the "kiddie" seat of the grocery cart while they are shopping.

home owners had expressed they would be willing to put in the larger mobile homes, McDonald wasn't sure.

The council voted to continue with their current project and hold the actual public hearing on the matter at its next meeting.

In other business, council heard a staff report regarding the crossing guard provided by the recreation department for the Palm/Golden intersection, for Palm Middle School students.

Council had been informed at its previous meeting by Golden Avenue resident Hannah Beyer that the crossing guard had failed to show up for duty several times and asked if stop signs or a signal light could be installed instead.

According to the recreation department's reports, the guard failed to show up for duty four times since beginning that duty last April. Shelver's staff report indicated that the crossing-guard position is due an evaluation in the near future.

In another report, Shelver informed council of the reassignment of Capt. Lynne Ziegler, head of the Lemon Grove Sheriff's station, by the Sheriff's department.

Shelver stated that Ziegler would leave the station on March 12 and begin her new assignment as head of the Central Jail on March 13.

She will be replaced by Capt. William Flores, who has been stationed at the Vista Jail.

Council has invited Ziegler to appear at its next meeting to receive commendation for her performance as station commander.

Also at the meeting, under sanitation district business, the council voted to authorize payment of the Metro Sewer Clean Water Program fees charged to each city utilizing the system. Staff recommended, however, that the sanitation district express its objection to the payment of administrative costs associated with the program until it can be shown that the charges reflect a fair percentage of costs which are divided among the participating cities.

Councilman Brian Cochran was absent from the meeting.

Capt. Ziegler to leave post next week

Captain Lynne Ziegler of the Lemon Grove Sheriff's Station starts her new job at the downtown jail on Friday, March 13. The city will honor Ziegler at the March 16 council meeting for her leadership and dedication to Lemon Grove.

B-Words Personal comments of Councilman Bob Burns

Blight

The word blight is usually defined as a disease that causes withering, checking, nipping, frustration and destruction of plants.

When the word is applied to other things, such as cities or neighborhoods, it means deterioration and besmirching of buildings and property with much the same effect.

Some planning agencies also include the less than best use of a property, and even the intangible impressions that develop for various reasons that downgrade an area. In some cases, it is simply neglect and the allowance of a natural decay or unkempt condition to occur over time. Other facts are willful acts of vandalism and defacing of what once were clean and attractive premises.

Another question in the mail box, and in keeping with the same theme, pertains to the vacant properties along Broadway and elsewhere in our town.

The answer is that they are private properties and the city is therefore not responsible and does not have a legal right to clean them up. The tumbleweeds and other overgrowths are unsightly and should be taken care of.

The city has a duty to prevent fire and is thus concerned with true fire hazards. However, this is a fine line and what often looks dangerous to the public eye, is actually not in the fire marshal's opinion. Apparently it is one of our "civil liberties" to be ugly, and thus it cannot be declared a crime or a danger to life and limb.

Graffiti is a glaring example of this, and in my mind does more to cause the term blighted to be affixed to neighborhoods than anything else.

What started out as a part-time, side job, of one of our public works people has now become a full-time task that he cannot keep up with.

We have found that if graffiti is removed promptly, its repeat is discouraged to some degree. If the "message wall" is taken away, the communicators cease to throw down their verbal gauntlets and epithets of "turf" or challenges to rivals.

The view from the freeway gives Lemon Grove a very ugly face with all of the spray art that adorns (I used this word ironically) the fences and backs of the buildings along our northern border. The warehouse is particularly bad and looks as though it will take many gallons of paint to cover up the gang hieroglyphics.

Whatever happened to "Jack & Jill" anyway?

Some property owners are reluctant to allow the city crews to paint out graffiti. It is thought that a fear of reprisal is the cause, but that is surely a remote possibility.

With permission, the graffiti team will paint over the graphics as fast as possible, and property owners should call City Hall for this service, if they cannot do it themselves.

In some cities, there have been laws passed to declare graffiti a public nuisance and making it a misdemeanor to leave it in place. Certainly we don't have to take such measures in Lemon Grove, so I would hope that all property owners would cooperate to rid us of this blight.

The one piece of property that is an enigma in our town is the bank that faces east off the Palm Middle School boundary. It is a sea of tumbleweeds, and they are ready to roll. Something must be done about them either by the owner of the property or our own public works people.

If you have questions or suggestions for Dr. Burns, send them to P.O. Box BB, Lemon Grove, CA 91946

Other candidates for the Lemon Grove City Council are invited to submit their views on matters of interest to the citizens of Lemon Grove.

From Where I Sit

The long way to Europe by Frank Andrews

When my wife, Willie Marie, joined me as my partner in the Andrews Distinctive Decorating business, we not only became the first husband and wife paperhanging team, but soon became one of the best in the San Diego area. I had left a 30-man decorating business which I owned and operated, when I migrated to Southern California in the early '60s. I had visions of starting a comparable business out here. The ups and downs of running a crew of men was outweighed by the independence and "the pride of craftsmanship" that was achieved by our new partnership.

Soon after showing our "pride of craftsmanship," our business became strictly for the most prestigious interior decorators and residents of the area. We even did difficult hangings for other paperhangers who didn't think that they could handle the job.

One of our more memorable assignments was the hanging of a very luscious foil in the entertainment center of the Copley's (the newspaper people) La Jolla residence. We were admitted to the Copley compound by guards at the gate. The huge compound resembled something from the "Godfather" movies.

After just a short time into our papering project, we were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Copley. They were holding hands like newlyweds and marveled at our loving husband-and-wife working arrangement. The Copley couple spent some time with us and then invited us to lunch with them. On our way home that day Willie remarked and I agreed, "Wasn't that the nicest couple that we had ever worked for?"

Shortly after that small project at the Copley compound, we were contracted to refurbish the Copley's Casa del Zorro resort at Borrego Springs with wallcoverings. This beautiful desert complex is made up of several individual apartments, restaurants, and a spacious main lodge with all the trimmings.

When we were called to duty - which was nearly every weekend during that particular summer - a nice air-conditioned casa was waiting for us. After each day's work, Willie Marie and I would jump in the pool to refresh before a scrumptious gourmet meal.

This wonderful weekend work-and-play combo lasted until fall of that year. I had purposely neglected billing their business office so that the total sum due us was pretty sizable, at least for our "two-horse outfit." We had made some pretty neat plans for our little "nest egg."

We were going to Europe! Something we had planned on doing for many years and now it was all coming true. We were able to pay our living expenses with our normal week's work and use our weekend earnings for a real vacation. We will never forget the very nice Copleys for making this all possible. "Thanks again, Helen."

City Manager responds to fee query

Dear Ms. Mundt:

Please forgive the delay in responding to your letter to the editor in the Lemon Grove Review. I have been out of town on a short vacation this past week. I am pleased to provide the information that you requested in your letter. Nearly a year ago, City staff reported to the City Council that we had not increased the Business License Fee since 1978 when they were established and that the cost of providing municipal services had increased significantly since then. Staff recommended that rather than increase the fee as a number of cities have been doing recently, that we institute a processing fee to cover the cost of collecting and maintaining Business License Fee data.

We determined that the total direct costs of administering the Business License Fee program (as opposed to merely collecting the initial fee or the renewals) was approximately $47,880 per year. We also determined that we were maintaining a Business License Fee inventory of approximately 1,750 licenses. We therefore determined that the cost to process these licenses was approximately $27.36 each. Since it was late in the fiscal year and we assumed that our costs would increase in the following fiscal year, we recommended that the City Council set the Processing Fee at $30. We felt that it was reasonable to round up to the nearest even number since we would not expect to change the fee until there was a significant increase in the cost of processing.

The study referred to by Dr. Burns was merely a computation of the costs associated with the processing of Business License Fees. A summary of those computations is as follows:

Personnel Costs, Clerical (one employee + benefits) - $25,245; Computer Hardware and Software - $6,000; Computer Maintenance - $2,385; Forms, Envelopes, Postage - $1,550; Staff Costs (Fire Dept., Community Development Dept.) - $13,700; Total Costs - $48,880.

Incidentally, I have reviewed those costs based upon current cost factors and have found that the total this year is $52,320, which would support a processing fee of $30.46.

Your point that a computer-generated renewal form and the computer printed license renewal should not cost $37 (or even $30, for that matter) is certainly well taken. However, the nature of many fee determinations is to base them on the average cost, or the total cost of the program divided by the number of units served. That is the case in this instance. Full cost recovery for a service involves not only the cost of the printing, postage, and staff time, but the cost of support staff as well as the equipment needed to process the applications and renewals.

I hope this information is helpful in clarifying the basis for the Business License processing fee and how the amount of the fee was determined.

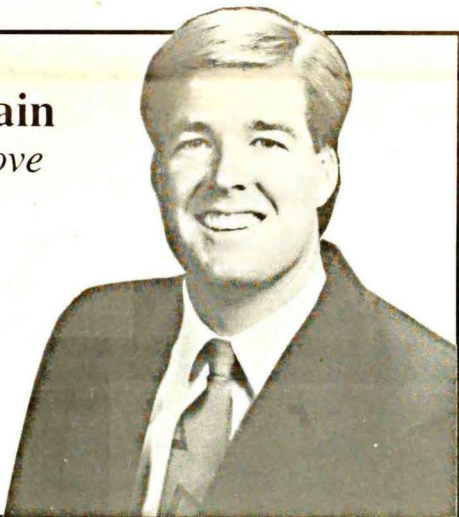

Sincerely, Jack D. Shelver

Friends of the Library are organizing

Representatives of over 4,500 friends of the libraries all over San Diego County have officially joined together to form a San Diego County Friends of the Library organization for the purpose of developing a countywide, collective voice to speak out on issues affecting libraries.

A Steering Committee was selected to function in an executive capacity until the next meeting to be held on April 4. Members of the Steering Committee are Chairman Prof. Gerry Slusser and Ed Carter, Valley Center; Susan Sheldon and Judy Watts, Poway; Pam Woodward, Santee; Elyse Kuhn, Ramona; Dick Mason, San Marcos; and Dianne Jacob.

"We will strongly oppose any library closures and any cuts in library services, and I believe that, together, we have the power to succeed. We will be quite active in our support of local libraries and the county system," said Slusser.

The formation meeting was hosted by Friends of the Poway

Library with President Joye Davisson presiding.

In attendance were representatives of Alpine, Potrero, San Marcos, Jacumba, Ramona, Santee, Descanso, Julian, Lakeside, Poway, Valley Center, El Cajon, Fallbrook, Pine Valley and county library staff.

Chubb re-elected to CSBA Board

Carol Chubb, a trustee of the Lemon Grove Elementary School District, has been re-elected to the Board of Directors of the California School Board's Association. She will continue to represent school districts in San Diego County on the 24-member board, which is a key part of CSBA's governing structure. Chubb has served on the board since 1984.

"She was returned to office as a CSBA director by trustees representing school districts across the state in the association's Delegate Assembly because of her outstanding leadership and commitment to students," said CSBA President Scott P. Plotkin. CSBA represents over 5,000 locally elected school board members throughout California.

Girls JROTC Drill Team at Mount Miguel stands tall

Last Friday, Mount Miguel JROTC had an internal drill competition, pitting the girls against the boys.

Cadet Sgt. Laqwanna Good led the girls to a close victory over the boys led by Cadet Sgt. Jay Batoon.

According to JROTC instructor, 1st Sgt. Dave Stanley, the teams had been practicing for over three months for this competition which garnered the winner a trophy inscribed with the drill leader's name.

Local recruiters came out to the school's parking lot to judge the competition which Stanley taped the drills to enter in a regional competition.

"We used to compete with Santana (High School), but they closed their ROTC program down. We decided that since we had a girls team this year, we could have our own competition of regulation drills," Stanley explained.

Girls unit wins bragging rights in first competition with boys
